INTRODUCTION

Lorsque l'on s'intéresse aux agrumes, la complexité de ce groupe végétal apparaît rapidement. Les scientifiques ne font pas exceptions à cet fait puisque depuis plus de 300 ans, un nombre important de classification botanique tendant à structurer, mais chacune à sa façon, le genre Citrus sont apparus. Ajoutez à cela, une richesse importante d'appellations locales, issues de la tradition orale avec les variations que cela entraîne, puis plus récemment, l'apparition de dénominations commerciales afin de diffuser ce qui occupe la deuxième place dans les échanges mondiaux de produits végétaux, juste après le raisin, il est aisé de comprendre que rien n'est simple dans le jardin des Hespérides.

Cet annuaire, issu de la collaboration entre chercheurs partageant le même intérêt sur les agrumes, et ceci dans plusieurs pays ayant une tradition agrumicole, est la première étape d'une volonté de standardisation et d'identification dans ce groupe de fruit. Il s'appuie sur la classification du japonais Tanaka qui, si elle ne fait pas l'unanimité dans le monde des taxonomistes, a l'avantage d'être très détaillée. En annexe, les équivalences avec celle de l'américain Swingle sont données afin que chacun puissent faire son choix.

Les tableaux, triés alphabétiquement par variétés, indiquent pour chaque nom rencontré (nom local, appellation commerciale, variant orthographique,...) , son binôme latin généralement admis dans la classification de Tanaka, son nom standardisé. Une synthèse sur les appellations des hybrides complète cet annuaire.

Ce document est un des produits résultant de l'informatisation des collections d'agrumes présentes depuis des décennies dans les centres de recherches. C'est aussi une première étape vers la mise en commun des informations disponibles sur ces sites mais sous forme hétérogène, et donc difficilement synthétisable.

Cette version 1.8, forcément encore incomplète, compte tenu de l'ampleur du sujet, ne demande qu'à être amendée, complétée par vos contributions : n'hésitez donc pas à contacter un des contributeurs, dont l'adresse figure à la fin de cet annuaire, afin d'apporter votre concours à ce projet en vue de la prochaine édition.

INTRODUCTION

When one is interested in citrus fruits, the complexity of the plant group quickly becomes apparent.

Scientists do not make exceptions for the fact that over the last 300 years a number of important taxonomic classifications have been proposed, each different in their own way, for the Citrus genus.

Add to this the large variety of local names; some resulting from local oral traditions, others from the commercial arena of the second largest global fruit market after grapes, and it is easy to understand why nothing is simple in the garden if the Hesperides.

This directory, the result of collaborations between scientists from several countries with a tradition of citriculture who share the same interest in citrus fruits, is the first stage of the desire for standardisation and classification of the Citrus genus.

It builds on the classification of Tanaka (ref?) which, while not universally accepted, has the advantage of being very detailed.

Annexed are equivalencies with the classification of Swingle are given so that each may make their own choice.

Pictures, arranged alphabetically by variety, indicate; every known name (local, orthographic, commercial,...), the latin binomial name generally taken from the classification of Tanaka, and the standardised name.

A list of the names of hybrids completes this directory.

This document is one of the products resulting from the computerisation of the decades old fruit collections in research centers.

It is also a first stage towards the pooling of the information available from the sites which, being heterogeneous in structure, are difficult to align together.

This version necessarily still incomplete considering the size of the topic, requires amendment to be completed by your contributions. Please do not hesitate to contact one of the contributors, whose names and addresses can be found at the end of this document, to add your opinions to the next edition of this project.
